The Indiana Sustainability Development Program (ISDP) is a workforce development program that combats the loss of workforce talent in sustainability by connecting the wealth of talent produced by IU's outstanding academic programs to sustainability needs across Indiana.

ISDP Core Objectives

- Prepare students for sustainability careers through full-time summer employment with business, city, and non-profit partners in Indiana
- Retain sustainability talent in Indiana to create a brighter future for all Hoosiers
- Provide valuable capacity for partner organizations through impactful summer fellowships
- Drive innovation and progress through a public-private sector community approach

By the Numbers

- Since 2017: 93 placements
- 2020: 39 Municipal, 41 Nonprofit, 13 Corporate
- 100% of partner organizations said that they had a great overall experience with ISDP in 2019
Expand sustainability workforce development

OTHER WAYS TO SUPPORT ISDP
Want to get involved but not interested in hosting an ISDP fellow? Here are 3 more ways you can support the program:
- Support the ISDP summer housing scholarship: relocation costs and average monthly rent in Indiana is upwards of $1,000, a cost-prohibitive barrier to entry for many low-income students.
- Increase sustainability capacity with your community: Upon request, we will earmark your funds to support fellow(s) placed in your community of choice.
- Support the ISDP Boot camp training: support the three-day ISDP Boot camp training. ISDP provides meals, overnight housing, and expert-led training sessions for 30+ students each year.
